Miss Yaw's Recital, Artistic Triumph; Wonderful Singer

Ellen Beach Yaw as she impressed her Miss Yaw's first appearance before an El Paso audience was anything but pleasing. But this was not to last. A inkling prelude on the piano, a burst of song as Af from the throats of a rangement was made upon the orders thrush, and the American Jenny Lind of Miss Yaw's manager. had risen to the occasion splendidly.

Filmy, lacy, drawnwork like, her voice thrilled from note to note and from low to high pitch with the spontaniety of a spring bird inspired by the warm, bright, sunshine. Hers is not a commanding voice. She did not march onto the stage with shoulders thrown back and with the air of an officer of the old guard taking command, as did David Bispham in the recital the great baritone gave here last year.

Miss Yaw's voice is as modest as her personality. As artistic as the great paritone, her methods directly opposed to those of the music master who sang in the same theater last year, Miss Yaw's concert was just as enjoyable in an entirely different field. Pleasing as were her program numbers, the simple little encores were even more pleasing and when she appeared with Mr. Plowe, the solo flutist, in the numbers with flute obligato, her voice blended so perfectly with that of the instrument that her tones could not be distin-guished from those of the mellow flute. She completely captivated the audience.

Unsurpassed in the high range, Miss aw's voice is delightful when she was rilling through this register. She was inging higher than her audlence realzed because her songs were all pitched high. When singing in full voice as in the mad scene from "Lucia di Lammermoor," her tone power was seen at its best, but it was in the lighter, finer oned songs that she exceled. trilling was remarkable and showed the perfection of breath control which she has attained. It was only in the medium range that the fineness of her art was missing and even then the perfection of technique upheld her artistry. When it is known that she was suffering from indisposition which confined her to her bed Monday, the recital Monday evening was all the more of a trlumph.

Opening her concert with the "Russian Nightingale" song by Alabieff, Miss Yaw had arranged her program to alternate with her instrumental soloists that her appearance on the stage would not occur too frequently. Plowe, the solo flutist, proved himself as much an artist as Miss Yaw and his solo numbers were equally well ceived. He appeared in the first flute obligate number with Miss Yaw following his solo/ and the effect of the blended tones of the voice and flute was as soothing as a summer shower.

Mr. Deming, the solo planist, followed with two instrumental selections. His other solo, "The Wind," was most realistically effective.

Miss Yaw then sang a group of four short songs, the last one in German. The encore numbers as given by the famous soprano were well chosen. sang "Coming Thro' the Rye," after the first flute obligato number, and later n the evening sang "Suwanee River," "Dixle," and a catchy little English ditty, which caught the audience from the first note. For these simple little songs, Miss Yaw played her own accompaniment with an abandon that was refreshingly girlish. The closing num-ber was the most pretentious on the program, Miss Yaw singing the mad hearing before justice scene to Mr. Plowe's obligato. While splendidly done, the effort was not as charming as her lighter, gauzier selecsum of $1000 each in default of tions. For an encore to this, the closwhich they were sent to the county ing number, Miss Yaw sang our

WOMAN IS THE BETTER--BETTER HALF.

Man only thinks he is the lord of reation. His, in reality, is the puppet crown. The power behind the throne pulls the strings. Woman rules by wit, by art, by subtlety; but chief of her weapons are beauty of face and grace of line.

Women feel their sovereignty grow less sovereign, therefore, as their weight increases. This is a fatal error. To prevail, woman must be graceful. Man will not escape slavery, but he will be ome one else's slave. That's the rub. Dominate your figure by means of Marmola Prescription Tablets. Reduce It, if necessary, or hold its trimness intact. And it is in the composing room where the brunt of the battle is borne in the final hours in which is completed the record of a world's doings and undoings for a day. Masses of "copy" swirl upward in the tubes or are car ried in by boys from the city editoria room. The typesetting machines click click, click, in unceasing monotony and the proofreaders scan columns of "green proofs" with a rapidity, when under pressure, that would amaze the uninitiated observer. The "makeup" men cluster around the cumbersom tables or "stones" on which the forms are made up, lifting in the metal lines of type here, making corrections or shifting cuts there and locking the forms to be shunted into the stereotype room, where the paper matrices will be made. When the matrix is placed in the casting box the molten stereotype metal is poured in, and within a very few minutes the cylindrical plates, hardened quickly in the casting box by the pouring of cold water into the jacket, are locked on the cyl-

Midnight in the offices of the Advance on the night that Judge Bartelmy's photograph was taken with $10,-000 of bribe money in his hands found the staff of the paper in all departments working as probably they had never worked before, except on election night. working like galley slaves to get the great Bartelmy exposure story into type and into the forms. The composing room in the Advance building was a "double decker"-i. e., a second story had been built in the rear part of the room to accommodate the proofreaders. This second story was really but a half story, extending out over a portion of the composing room, and the walls were partitions, the lower half of wood and the upper half of glass windows.
